

HIAWATHA CO. TO BE REORGANIZED

JUDGMENT FOR $881 WAS PAID THIS MORNING.

E. C. DIVINE IS AT HELM

Temporary But Perfectly Appointed and Sanitary Bottling Plant Will Be Erected At Once At Burr Springs.

Parties from Chicago, Milwaukee, Green Bay, and other points of the Wisconsin bottling industry gathered here this morning prepared to attend the sheriff's sale of the Hiawatha Springs Co. property in the basement of the Lapham block on South Main street and bid in some $5,000 bottles worth from $5,000 to $10,000 and machinery worth six or eight thousand dollars. The projected sale was to cover a judgment for $881.50 for rental secured by the Janesville Bottling Mills, but it did not take place.

E. C. Divine of Minneapolis, who has become interested in the concern with L. M. Park, S. S. Thorp, and others, paid the judgment and will proceed to reorganize the company with a capital of $300,000. It will be headed by a directorate of conservative business men and will begin operations by erecting a small bottling plant for immediate use on the site of the spring.

Mr. Divine has made a thorough investigation of the company's affairs and the commodity it dealt in. He points to the growing demand for pure water in all cities throughout the civilized world, the Chicago World's Fair awards which gave the Janesville product a place ahead of the Waukegan, Poland, and every other spring water on the market; the analysis which shows that the natural, still liquid will maintain its purity after it has been bottled for five years; and other facts which augur well for the building up of a big business, under wise management.

As specific instances of the magnitude of the water business, he cites the fact that the company which deals in Annapolis paid 11 per cent dividends last year on $30,000,000 stock; the fact that the company which handles the Poland springs product in Maine has a capital of $9,000,000.

Glass pipes, the strictest sanitation in all the bottling operations—these cause nothing becomes contaminated so easily or so quickly as water—and a spur track from one of the railroads are some of the factors in Mr. Divine's plan. He thinks the advantage here is a big asset and declares that there is a healthy demand for the water in the east and west at the present moment.

The transporting of the water in iron tanks to an unwholesome, ramshackle, and uncleanly bottling plant, according to his notion, about the worst bit of folly in the old company's record of mismanagement. In spite of that, he says that the books show orders for whole carloads of water that were never filled.

RAT-KILLING DAY IN HOOSIER STATE

Grande Against Pesteiferous Rodent Commenced In Earnest In Gibson County.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Princeton, Ind., June 6.—War against the pestiferous rat was begun in earnest today in this state, hostilities beginning in Gibson county, where the citizens observed the day as "rat killing day." The movement for the extermination of the rat in this state was originated by J. R. Strickland, a young draught of Owensville, who is taking great interest in the problem and introduced a bill in the legislature, authorizing townships to pay a small bounty on rat tails. Owing to the rush of bills during the closing days of the session the bill was not passed, but the citizens realizing the importance of the problem, readily supported the plan of waging a wholesale war against the rats which are the cause of enormous damage and a source of constant danger in many of the infested districts of the state. The people of Gibson county were the first to take up the plan in a practical way and today was assigned as rat-killing day throughout the county. Statistics showing the number of rats killed are not yet available, but, judging from the extensive preparations that had been made for the day it is safe to assume that the number of rats in Gibson county was materially reduced today.

LIVELY CONTESTS IN IOWA TUESDAY

Republican Primaries Will Afford First Real Test of Relative Strength of Two Factions.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Des Moines, Ia., June 6.—Politicians who have been watching for the national drift in republican politics will await with keen interest the results of the republican primaries to be held throughout Iowa tomorrow. It will afford the first real test of strength between the regulars and progressives and will doubtless exert considerable influence upon the republican party conventions to be held later in Minnesota, Wisconsin and other states of the middle west.

The fight between the regulars and progressives for control of the state convention has been one of the fiercest ever known in Iowa politics. Iowa is now regarded as a progressive state. Her senators took the lead in the tariff fight, and were backed by insurgent congressmen from several districts. If the progressives succeed in controlling the state convention, the Taft administration is not likely to be endorsed, excepting possibly in quite general terms, and Senators Dooliver and Cummins will be held up as reflecting perfectly the will of the republican party in Iowa. If the regulars gain control, the Taft administration will be endorsed generally and specifically, and the work of the two senators will be discredited.

The fight between the civil factions is general all along the line. The more conservative of the progressive leaders were inclined to confine the fight to members of congress and to leave the state officers alone, but after considerable hesitation they yielded to the demand of the rank and file to extend the fight to the state offices. In pursuance of this plan former Lieutenant Governor Warren Darrat has been brought out as the progressive candidate for governor in opposition to Governor H. F. Carroll, who is making the fight of his political career for re-nomination.

But the most spectacular contests of all are those that are being made to return insurgent congressmen to Washington. Three districts in Iowa are completely represented by Cannon regulars. Walter L. Smith, a member of the old Cannon rule committee, represents the Seventh district, and C. A. Kennedy represents the First district. All supported Cannon measures and all voted for the Payne tariff bill. The other districts in Iowa, except the Eighth, which is represented by a democrat, are progressive.

In the Ninth district Congressman Smith is opposed for reelection on the ground that he is a Cannon man. In H. W. Dyers he has a foe man worthy of his steel. Mr. Dyers has served two terms as attorney general of Iowa, and it is believed by the progressives that he is as strong a candidate as could be put up.

In the Seventh district, Captain Hull is opposed by Judge B. F. Prouty, who came within forty votes of securing the nomination at the last primaries. He is a close friend and advisor of Senator Cummins. Captain Hull, who has represented the Seventh district for twenty years, is strongly entrenched in his political position. As chairman of the committee on military affairs, he has been for Des Moines one of the finest military posts in the country. In addition he secured last summer the great military tournament for Des Moines.

But in spite of this, the progressives believe he will be defeated. At a banquet here last winter Senator Cummins declared that even if Captain Hull had been able to do much for Des Moines by making it a military center, he had looked in other respects which might entitle him to reelection.

The contest against Congressman Kennedy in the First district, though it has not attracted so much attention, is regarded as almost as important as the fights in the Ninth and Seventh districts. S. Brookhart, a radical insurgent, is making the race against Mr. Kennedy.

Pirates Yesterday.

The Deloit Odd Sox, now going under the name of the Deloit "Doozers," met their second defeat at the hands of Janesville baseball players, when the Janesville Pirates trimmed them 20 to 5 yesterday. Alley, the local pitcher, pitched a fine game, allowing but six hits and striking out fourteen men. The Pirates' lineup was: McGinley, c; Alley, p; Potter, s.s.; Winslow, 1b; F. Spohn, 2b; M. Dalton, 3b; Fulton, 1b; Schlatter, c.f.; June, r.f.

THIEF AUGRELIUS, THE NONAGENARIAN, IN TOILS AGAIN

Given 15 Year Sentence by Judge Dunwiddie—Paroled Last Week—Stole Another Horse in Wood County.

Charles J. Augrelus, ninety years of age, horse thief by profession for over forty years, who was recently paroled through the efforts of influential Rockford people after serving a small portion of the 15 year prison term meted out to him at Monroe by the late Judge Dunwiddie, is again in the toils. A dispatch from Spring Green today states that he has been given a five year sentence at Vaucluse for horse stealing in Wood county but that owing to the fact that he is not believed to be entirely responsible, an effort will be made to have the sentence modified.

Some forty years ago Augrelus was a harness dealer in Edgerton but he was out of the "legitimate" and became identified with the town of Johnstown "Bandits of the Prairie," a gang of notorious horse thieves. Between prison terms at Vaucluse, the Minnesota state penitentiary, and other penal institutions, he made his headquarters in and about Pine Creek, Ill.

In the summer of 1901 seven thefts in the towns of Plymouth, Newark, and Avon were laid at his door. Undersheriff Wallace Cochrane, captured on his trail for several weeks and finally captured him at Oregon, Ill. On the 20th day of November, that year, he was sent to prison for a year and three months.

In 1888-89 he operated extensively in Dane county and nearly the whole southern portion of the state has suffered from his depredations.

TOM FLOOD FINED $10 FOR ANNOYING PEOPLE AT THE LOUDON HOME

Specific Charge Filed Against Him Was Drunkenness and He Pleaded Guilty.

Because the authorities were unwilling to bring James G. Loudon, his daughter, Mrs. Charles Hines, and other witnesses into court to testify to the obscene language the prisoner was alleged to have used, a complaint charging drunkenness, lodged against Tom Flood in municipal court this morning. He pleaded guilty and Judge Flood in passing sentence of $10 and costs, with the alternative of 30 days in jail, told the gentleman that there had been a great deal of complaint about his hanging about the Loudon home, 308 Race street, and ringing the doorbell at all times of the night and that the practice had got to stop. Flood hoped to be able to pay his fine but went to the county jail with Mike Mulquin who was sent up for seven days in lieu of the payment of a fine and costs amounting to $1. Oscar Nelson of Evansville, a section hand, also pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and his employer appeared on the scene and paid his fine and costs amounting to $3.

MAKING PLANS FOR GAMES AT YOST'S DURING SUMMER

George Casey is Organizing Baseball Team for Sunday Games.

George Casey is gathering together some of the best baseball talent in the city for a representative Janesville team and is planning to play the opening game of a series at Yost's park a week from next Sunday. George Wilbur of Beloit is manager for a Beloit nine being formed and the first game will probably be between the two teams. Casey is planning to bring out Chicago teams for each Sunday's contests. The "Impetables," one of the teams in the City League of Chicago, will play two games, Sunday, July 3, and Monday, July 4. Manager Casey has secured Blodgett and Wilson as pitchers. Wilson pitched in the Trolley series last season.

FIRST GAME OF LEAGUE SCHEDULE PLAYED SATURDAY

Parker Pen Company Defeats Y. M. C. A., 6 to 2—Caloric Losses to Woolen Mills, 6 to 0.

Balked in the attempt to play the first scheduled game on May 28 by bad weather, the Commercial League opened the 1910 season by two rattling games Saturday, between the

SLUG FEST AT FAIR GROUNDS

Parker Pen Company—Y. M. C. A. teams at the Y. M. C. A. park and the Rock River Woolen Mills-Caloric teams at the Fair grounds.

Both games were hotly contested but the Pen Makers defeated their rivals 6 to 2 while the Woolens shut out the Caloric, 6 to 0. In the first game, both Y. M. C. A. and Klatter struck out seven men but the latter was touched up for seven hits while Pope got away with one less and kept his six well scattered. Derlith's one hand pick-up of a hot liner in the fourth was the feature of the game. The lineup:

Second Game.

Both pitchers in the Caloric-Woolen Mill game were hit hard but lack of team work on the part of the Caloric and consequent errors cost them the game. Smith and Holmes were the battery for the victors while Blodgett and Hall worked for the newcomers. Smith "struck" out 16 while Blodgett fanned 11.

Director's Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Commercial League will be held at eight o'clock this evening at the Y. M. C. A. building. Matters of business will be taken up and discussed.

Rat-Catching Industry.

The rats of the Paris sewers, driven from their homes by the great floods, have invaded some quarters of the city in such numbers that special means for their destruction have had to be taken. The regular band of municipal rat-catchers were quite overwhelmed by the magnitude of the task, and their numbers have, therefore, been doubled. The occupation of rat-catching in Paris pays well. Those animals which are caught alive are sent to London and Brussels, whence numerous orders arrive from breeders of rat-catching dogs. The exportation of Parisian rats at present amounts to between 1,500 and 2,000 a day. They are sold for about a dollar a dozen.

Bull Weevil Hard to Kill.

Experimenting with the bull weevil, a Texas farmer caught a lively one and placed it in water where it would freeze to death during the night. Next morning he found the water had frozen solid and the weevil was in the cake of ice, and the farmer congratulated himself on the discovery that cold would kill the weevil. But when the ice melted the bug walked around as lively as before freezing, and that farmer is convinced that freezing is not the proper means to exterminate the insect. He threw the weevil into a hot fire, and at last accounts was watching to see if it would come out alive.—Centerville (Tex.) Jeffersonian.

ROBBED OF $50,000 ON TRAIN.

William H. Miner, Chicago, Railway Supply Man is the Victim.

New York, June 6.—William H. Miner, a dealer in railway supplies at Chicago, last or was robbed of $50,000 in cash and negotiable papers while en route last Thursday night from Chicago to New York on the Twentieth Century Limited. Detectives employed by the Pullman company have been working on the case since Friday, but so far as could be learned no trace of the money or securities has been found.

Enjoining the few friends whom he took into his confidence to secrecy, Mr. Miner reported his loss to the Pullman company and at once took steps to have canceled a letter of credit for a large sum which had been issued by a Chicago bank and which Mr. Miner intended taking with him on a trip to Europe early this week. It is understood that considerably more than half of the $50,000 loss is covered by the letter of credit and negotiable papers.

On those Mr. Miner has caused payment to be stopped.

HITS AT SOCIALISM IN MICHIGAN TALK

TAFT DECLARES QUESTION IS GREATEST PROBLEM CONFRONTING THE NATION.

SPEAKS AT JACKSON, MICH

Many of His Hearers Believe President Launched New Issue for Next Presidential Campaign—Reaches Washington From Trip.

Washington, June 6.—President Taft arrived here last night from Jackson, Mich., and was ready to meet the railroad magnates today, who have challenged his right to deal with those corporations in the manner in which the fight against them is now being conducted by Attorney General Wickham.

At Jackson the president delivered a speech at the unveiling of a bronze tablet in commemoration of the birth of the Republican party "under the oaks in 1854."

He proclaimed socialism as the greatest problem that confronts the American people, the issue that is soon to come and that must be skillfully met. While declaring that it was not his purpose to make a political speech there were many of his hearers who construed his remarks as the framework of a possible issue for the next presidential campaign.

One Shot at Insurgency.

Mr. Taft also declared that popular government must be a government of parties, and in this connection there was a passing hint at insurgency. The president declared that unless individuals are willing to sink minor considerations to the will of the majority in a party, there would come a rule by groups.

"We have to have parties in a republic," he said, "and party government means that a majority or minority unite to support certain principles of government and to put them in force and agree that they will yield up their views on details and principles of less importance and unite on the great principles and follow the party in the course which, by a majority vote, it lays down as the proper course to take."

"Unless you do that, you are going to have a government by groups, by parties less than majorities, and the Lord knows where your government will be or how much it will accomplish."

Taft View on Socialism.

"The president's reference to socialism came at the conclusion of a brief history of what the Republican party has done."

"For the future," he said, "I shall say nothing because you would say I was making a political speech. All I can say is that the issue that is being framed as it seems to me is the issue with respect to the institution of private property. There are those who charge to that institution the corporate abuses, the greed and the corruption that grew out of those abuses, the unequal distribution of property, the poverty of some and the undue wealth of others and, therefore, say we will have none of it and we must have a new rule of distribution that for want of a better name we shall call socialism."

Other side of the Question.

"On the other hand, it is contended that it is not the institution of private property that should be abolished, but only that the time has come in which it is necessary to lay down certain rules restricting and regulating the use of that private property which shall not deprive the world of individual effort, but which shall still keep the law and the opportunity to use private property under such control that those abuses may be wiped out and the boon of individual effort will be left to us."

"Now, my friends, that presents a difficult problem that I am willing to admit we have not solved, and the question which the country will have to determine, after all, is, which party has shown sufficient skill and effectiveness in dealing with great issues, which party can be trusted to solve that problem, than which we have had no greater in the history of the country."

AMERICAN CAPTIVE OF PRESIDENT MADRIZ SAFE

Consul Cables State Department William P. Pittman is in No Danger.

Washington, June 6.—A mother's tears and prayers to President Taft have saved William P. Pittman from the fate of Groce and Cannon, the Americans who were executed in Nicaragua by Zelaya. Following the pleas of Mrs. Pittman that the government interfere for her son, who was recently captured by the Madriz forces while placing mines for the revolutionists official word was sent to the South American country that the court-martial of Pittman would be followed by prompt action by the government here.

The state department received assurances from President Madriz that no such steps were contemplated. The mother of the young man was immediately notified of the message and her fears concerning the safety of her son set at rest.

The message read: "In response to inquiries made prior to the receipt of your telegram I am happy to inform you that the department has just received from the consul at Managua a telegram of which the following is the paraphrase: 'Your telegram of June 4 received. Dr. Madriz has assured me through General Toledo that a court-martial has not been thought of, much less ordered, and has further assured me that Pittman will be treated fairly and considerately and that telegraphic instructions to that effect will be immediately dispatched.'"

General Liras at Greytown."

Pittman was born here twenty-two years ago. He always had a longing for adventure and when sixteen years old he ran away from home. His relatives, hearing nothing, gave him up as dead.

The college is the center of interest among the Swedish people of the nation and one of the most notable gatherings in the history of the country will be in attendance at the Augustan synod, which convened here today with 3,000 delegates present. A big auditorium has been built on the college grounds for the accommodation of the assemblies.

Failure of Ex-President to Visit Russia or Roumania is Praised.

New York, June 6.—The executive committee of the National Federation of Jewish organizations has adopted resolutions thanking Colonel Roosevelt for not visiting Russia and Roumania, which countries, it is pointed out, are the centers of anti-Jewish sentiment. The resolutions will be submitted to a mass meeting which will be held here shortly in protest against the expulsions at Kiel and, if carried by the meeting, they will be forwarded to Colonel Roosevelt.

27,000 GET RAISE BY THE DECISION

U. S. ARBITRATION BOARD ORDERS FIREMEN'S WAGES INCREASED 10 PER CENT.

WESTERN LINES LOSE CASE

Decision Shows Utility of Erdman Law in Averting Strike—High Cost of Living Was Main Plea of Men.

Chicago, June 6.—The United States arbitration board, appointed under the Erdman law, rendered a far-reaching decision which gives locomotive firemen of 49 railroads in the west an increase in wages averaging ten per cent over the pay which they now receive.

The increase granted varies from 5 per cent, on oil burning engines to about 18 per cent, on the heavy types of coal burning locomotives. Every class of the service, from switch and freight engine firemen to the men on the fast passenger and express locomotives, is included in the award.

Adds $3,000,000 to Wages.

The decision means that nearly $3,000,000 annually will be added to the pay roll for firemen on western railroads. Every railroad west of Chicago to the Pacific coast and from the Rio Grande to the Canadian border is affected.

High cost of living and increased work and responsibility by reason of increased tonnage and heavier types of engines were recognized as the two main factors warranting the raise in wages. These were the principal contentions of the firemen in their plea before the board, and the decision was regarded as an unusually complete victory for the men, inasmuch as the general average demanded was only 12 1/2 per cent, over the old rates.

Decision Far-Reaching.

The decision is the most far-reaching in its effect ever given under the Erdman law and again emphasizes the utility of the federal statute in the matter of averting disastrous railroad strikes. The increases in all classes are retroactive as of May 16, 1910, the day on which the board went into session.

Pretty Nearly Correct.

A school teacher in giving a lesson on ornithology to her pupils one day, having been discoursing on the ostrich earlier in the day, suddenly branched the question to the class as to what bird "had wings and couldn't fly." All previous instruction was apparently lost to the winds as one little fellow gave the very ingenious reply: "A dead one, ma'am."

The Ticklemouse
—and his Sleepyland Adventures
By Ray Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

The Music Box

"Teasing, teasing, I was only teasing you!" said the little music box in the quiet nursery.

The Ticklemouse stopped turning it and winked at Willy, who was skipping merrily around the rug while his uncle played. "Shall we waken them now, Willy?"

"Yes, let's," Willy shut one eye and drew up one fat little leg. "I wish—oh, I wish—"

Davy and Dorfy sat up in bed and blinked at the two merry mice. They saw the Ticklemouse looking curiously at the little round music box the twins had been having such fun with till bedtime.

"Made in Germany," read the Mouse. "What's the matter of the Germans, anyway? Don't they know more than one tune?"

"But that's an American tune!" And Davy threw off the coverlid and scampered over to Mr. Ticklemouse. "It's called 'Teasing You.' Don't you like it, Mr. Ticklemouse?"

"Like it? I love it!" exclaimed his friend. "And how would you like to see it perform outside its shell?"

The Ticklemouse gave the tin cover a quick twist and out spilled the little metal bars, falling with merry musical clinks on the tile before the grate.

"Give 'em a wish or two," whispered the Mouse in Willy's ear. In a twinkling the little metal bars became shiny metalmen, standing in a neat row before the Ticklemouse, like well drilled soldiers.

"Now," said the Mouse, "we'll see how many times they really do know. First tune!" he squeaked. The first little man bowed quickly, so low that his head touched the tiled floor with a clear, bell-like note. His bow was instantly followed by another farther up the row, and another, another—till the bowing men had played their time.

"Any choice?" said the Ticklemouse to Dorfy, who sat staring at the little row of shiny metal men as if she couldn't quite believe her eyes.

"Could they play 'Rings on Her Fingers and Bells on Her Toes'?" shyly asked the little girl.

"Play it!" promptly commanded the Ticklemouse. And the little men tickled it off as if they had sung it all their shiny lives. "What's your favorite?" asked the Ticklemouse of Davy.

"Morning Red!" said Davy, who loved the little sunrise song better than any he knew. The Ticklemouse was looking out at the night and did not hear the little boy's answer.

"Play it!" squealed Willy to the metalmen, who instantly bowed swift heads to the floor in the merry sunrise song. To the Ticklemouse's great surprise, the time was no more than started when he saw the rosy flush of sunrise tip the treetops in the east. Like a flash, he whirled upon the tinkling metal men.

"Stop that! Play a slumber song, quick!" He breathed a sigh of relief when he saw the rising sun sink back below the eastern horizon to the tender notes of the lullaby. He ordered the little metal men back into their music box, and kissed the twins goodnight.

"But, mind you, Willy!" he added, "if ever you tell a magic music box to play a sunrise song again while your Uncle Tick's abroad, be sure you give me a half hour's start. Why, you young rascal, in a minute more all the Cats o' Dawn in this half the world would have come bounding into that nursery window!"

all through again, just the same as when they had been inside the music box, only much more clear and sweet.

"Now, 'Three Blind Mice,'" grinned Willy Ticklemouse. And the shiny men solemnly tinkled through the tune of the twins had heard sung at Mouse Trap theater.

WHERE TO PUT YOUR MONEY

Shall it be with your home merchant or shall you send to some distant city for your supplies?

The country now is being flooded with catalogues and advertisements of business firms which pretend to offer great inducements for cash to the consumer to buy supplies of all kinds. All they ask is for you to send them the cash and they will sell you the goods out of sight and unseen apparently at low prices.

Suppose you should stop and consider a moment whether you gain anything by buying of these distant firms, if you are inclined at all to do so. Just remember that when you send your money to some mail order house you have to pay in advance for the goods, which you are buying, pig-in-the-poke style, with no chance to make comparison in the quality with other goods; and you do not know until you receive it, whether an article will suit you when you get it. In addition, you have to pay freight or express charges, and when the article comes if it does not suit, you have no redress, as it will not pay ordinarily to return it, nor will these firms permit you to do so, unless you pay express both ways. If it is damaged in transportation you have to accept it and then place a claim with the railroad company, waiting, perhaps, several months—possibly to eternity—before you secure pay for damaged articles.

ASK YOUR HOME DEALER

If you are inclined to buy from a mail order house some standard brand of goods with which you are familiar as to quality, size, etc., and the price seems low, why not ask your home dealer whether he cannot sell you that article for the advertised price, with freight added? Try him at least.

If you want to buy several articles do not permit yourself to be deceived into thinking that you will secure all the goods at low prices, even if one or two articles which are standard and are sold everywhere are quoted at a low price. If you think "to get something for nothing" you will be disappointed.

Don't place any stock in the carefully worded descriptions of goods. While they don't actually misrepresent, they ARE misleading and lead you to believe that you will get something a lot nicer than you expect.

Remember too, that if a mail order house makes exorbitant statements you cannot prove them untrue—and that your local dealer dare not make these exorbitant statements because he would lose his reputation.

If you buy from your reliable home merchant, you will have some variety from which to select, you see what you are buying as to quality, color, size, etc., and if the goods are unsatisfactory after you take them home and show them to the family, you may return them and secure other goods in place of them.

If your home merchant does not carry in his store the goods you need, ask him to send and get a price for you, or let him send and procure the goods.

The foregoing considerations apply to any commodity. But the intending purchaser of a piece of furniture should also consider two other facts. One of them has to do with the unpacking and setting up of the piece, and the other with possible mars or minor injuries to the piece itself. If you buy a sideboard, for instance, from a catalogue house you will have to unpack it, mount the top on the base, rub up the finish, and put it in the condition in which it would be delivered by your local dealer. Besides, you have to pay the freight, the cartage, and if you employ inexperienced hands to handle a highly polished piece of furniture, the chances of marring it are greatly increased.

The Janesville Gazette prints the advertisement of all the leading houses of Janesville. In every issue of The Gazette you will find prices quoted in almost every kind of merchandise lower than you would pay for a like product bought outside. The merchant who advertises is not afraid to let the public know what kind of goods he carries. He does not sell flour to one man for $1.40 and cut his price to $1.30 for the next. He has a price and it is the same for every one. The advertiser wants your trade and is not ashamed to ask for it and offer bargains to get your trade. Take The Gazette with you when you are shopping and if prices are quoted in the advertisements they will be given to you.

HOW WALL STREET VIEWS IT.

The sharp decline in railroad securities, following the late injunction served by the attorney general, resulted in a paper loss of $120,000,000, and a feeling of depression all along the line. Railroad managers are at a loss to know how to proceed and western representatives are in conference with the president today, to see what can be done to meet the technicalities of the Sherman law, and at the same time give them relief.

The injunction recently issued was not against advancing rates, but was based on a combination in which twenty-five western roads were accused of being interested. To men who have given the matter any thought it will be apparent that a mutual understanding and agreement, not only on rates, but on many other things, is necessary to railroads doing an interstate business. The public could not be served in any other way, and it is to be hoped that an adjustment will be speedily made. In discussing the situation the Wall Street Journal says:

"A severe blow has been administered to financial interests by an unexpected injunction against an advance in railroad rates. Its first effect was to startle Wall Street and force demoralized selling of stocks. What the final outcome will be cannot now be foreseen.

"It means at any rate a period of prolonged discussion at Washington, together with a general reopening of agitation against the railroads. Out of the struggle so suddenly precipitated there should come some rational and permanent solution of the railroad problem; but unfortunately during the interval a period of more or less unsettlement in values must be expected.

"The present status of the railroads is, therefore, and some judicial power is necessary to settle the differences between them and the people. Railroads are a natural monopoly, and as such exercise arbitrary powers which inevitably invite the distrust of shippers and should be restrained. Railroad managers are human, and however broad-minded and liberal they may be, are likely in the matter of rates to put on all the traffic will bear. Shippers desire stable rates, good service and equality of treatment.

"These advantages they generally receive, yet find themselves at the mercy of the railroads in the question of rates. The freight rate is a subject of bargaining—the usual method of settling business transactions—hence the alarm of shippers at the recent movement of the roads to advance rates. Shippers believe the advance to be unnecessary, and express serious alarm at this exercise of arbitrary power free of restraint.

"On the other hand the railroads find themselves face to face with the problem of securing sufficient revenue to meet the increased demands of labor and rapidly growing expenses. There seems to be but one true solution of this antagonism in the relations between the railroads and the people; that is the establishment of some court or tribunal designed to arbitrate and settle all such differences.

"If such a court could be devised, securing fair treatment to the railroads and just and reasonable rates to shippers, a long step would be taken in removing one of the most acute sources of financial and political disquiet.

PARTY RE-ORGANIZATION.
The republican conference held at the court house Saturday afternoon was an old time enthusiastic gathering of representative men from all parts of the county and the organization perfected will be permanent.

On every hand was heard expressions of satisfaction and the sentiment of the 170 men present was a unit in endorsing President Taft and the national administration.

It was a harmonious convention and the address of A. E. Matheson, which was a strong plea for loyalty and harmony, was the only address given.

While a full list of delegates and alternates was elected, assurances were given that all loyal republicans who could go to Milwaukee would find seats in the convention.

The party, so long demoralized, has again come into its own and after the Milwaukee conference the republicans of the state will know where they are and become more united and efficient.

The new organization will be free from factionalism as any man will discover who attempts to stir up strife. The badge of membership is loyalty and nothing else, and the creed is so short and simple that any mind will comprehend it. That good results will follow is not questioned.

The success of the Milwaukee convention will depend upon the interest taken in it by men who have formerly been allied with the La Follette wing of the party. The selection of Allen and Linerott as presiding officers was the right thing to do. Harmony in the party is as important as loyalty and this should receive first consideration.

The result of the primary election in Iowa tomorrow, will be watched with interest. The state, under the leadership of Cummins and Doolittle, is supposed to be strongly insurgent, but the Des Moines Capital, the leading republican paper, is confident that the voters will be loyal to Taft and the national administration.

The endorsement of republican candidates in Pennsylvania last Saturday indicates that the state is not hopelessly given over to insurgency. Most of the old congressmen were re-nominated and they will be elected as the state is a republican stronghold.

Captain Lewis of Racine failed to receive a home endorsement at the Saturday convention, and his chances for being the next governor are not very flattering in spite of the fact that he is a liberal advertising patron of La Follette's magazine.

Mr. Bryan is so fascinated with his own oratory that the last issue of his paper, "The Commoner," is largely devoted to a speech which he delivered the other day in Porto Rico. Just how the natives stood it, is not stated.

The crop outlook is encouraging, in spite of the cold weather, and a hot July and August will produce an average yield.

Uncle Walt

THE POET PHILOSOPHER
BY WALT MASON.
(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthews Adams.)

Off times when people get together, the conversation lags, till some one speaks about the weather; then it no longer drags. We've found a theme that's most appealing—a theme we understand, and so, with energy and feeling, we talk to bout the band. Of cloudburst, hailstorm and tornado, we all have yards to spare; the weather in an El Dorado, for people everywhere. "The Big Wind came in '97," the hoary grandfathers cry, and then the rest of us are driven to other windy lies. "In '63 the weather wizard predicted drought and heat; instead there came a mighty blizzard that filled the land with sleet." "Oh Caesar! Walt do I remember the year that turned me gray? July the fourth came in September, and Charles was in May." "Yes, that's when people got together on the good old hour, and on one's acre or four, but I liked discussion switches to politics or books, or folks who roll in sinful riches, or servant girls or cooks, then everything's at once a jungle, and voices rise and screech, and fuss and fume, and preach. So let us, when we get together, for gentler, social ends, discourse of nothing but the weather, and then we'll still be friends.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

DIVORCE IN HIGH LIFE.

On the same page of a newspaper I find two stories of divorce in high life. One tells of the marital warfare of Charles Miller, the Standard Oil millionaire of Pennsylvania, and his wife. According to the newspapers, Miller has paid $500,000 to his wife in settlement in order to avoid publicity concerning the married life of the twins.

The other case is that of Albert J. Davis, the millionaire creameryman of Chicago, who is suing his wife for divorce. The evidence in the trial showed that Mrs. Davis was drunk for six years—one of the most prolonged periods of record.

Physicians testified that they frequently had attended Mrs. Davis for alcoholism, and that she was often in a serious state. One doctor told how she had seen shapeless evils crawling on the floor and walls and green dragons that issued from her slippers and climbed up the sky.

Neighbors testified that Mrs. Davis frequently would come home in a cab so drunk that the cabman would have to pick her up and carry her in.

And, besides being shown as the champion Marathon drinker of her sex in Chicago, it was proved on the trial that she was often visited by an attendant whose coming and going were the scandal of the neighborhood.

Nor is that all of the nauseous mess. Mrs. Davis alleged that her husband was also untrue to his marriage vows and introduced witnesses to try to prove it.

Why drag your attention through such a foul moral sewer?
Certainly not to adorn a tale, but to point a moral.

These two divorce cases are typical of the marital infidelity of the so-called "smart set," millionaires and their wives, who fancy that money will buy anything they want.

You say you must work hard and your wife must sit and save, you strain every nerve to pay your honest debts and meet the high cost of living and you cannot earn as much in a year as some of these people spend in a day. Nevertheless I say to you—

Put the sorrow of the very rich!

If you have a faithful wife and healthy children you can well afford to pity these debauchees and reflect over the question whether or not you yourself could stand their great prosperity.

Descriptive Journalism.

David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, was described in a French newspaper as the "yelling Ancho of the British crisis." This is one of the queerest paragraphs in Lloyd's of Paris: "The eye of Lloyd George shoots out flames. It is with the innate majesty of a king of speech that he trends the platform, roaring, stamping yes, howling, while he shakes the mass of his long black hair."

American Cities Behind.

In South American cities such as Buenos Ayres, Rio Janeiro, Lima and Valparaiso, billboards are regulated and taxed, the city of Buenos Ayres itself putting up the boards and regulating the space. In America are almost the only cities in the world where the billboard—untaxed and scarcely regulated at all—is free to revel in its blight.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S NEW PRIVATE SECRETARY.

At right, Fred W. Carpenter.

Washington.—It is regarded here today as practically certain that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles D. Norton of Chicago will succeed Fred W. Carpenter as secretary to the president. The decision is said to have been reached by President Taft. It is understood that the president has been assured that Mr. Norton stands ready to serve the president in whatever capacity Mr. Taft may need him. President Taft is anxious to have a secretary a man who in a way will be an "assistant president." He has declared to his friends that he wants a man who will relieve him of all the minor details of the executive office, much as Mr. Loch shared the arduous labors of Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Norton for the last four years before his appointment to the post of assistant secretary of the treasury, was general agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company in Chicago. He was born in Burlington, Vt., and entered an insurance office in Milwaukee at the age of 15 years. After two years as a clerk he went to Amherst college, from which he was graduated. He then entered the insurance business in Chicago.

ELECTRIC COMPANY HAS SURRENDERED LOCAL FRANCHISE

In Order to Apply to State Railroad Commission for an Intermediate Permit.

The Janesville Electric company this morning filed with City Clerk Roy Cummings a declaration to the effect that it had decided to surrender its franchise, granted to the Thompson-Houston Electric Co. of Boston or its assigns Feb. 9, 1885, and apply to the state railroad commission for an immediate permit, as provided by Chapter 180 of the laws of 1909. The declaration was accompanied by copies of the resolutions passed by the stockholders and was signed by M. G. Jeffris, president; and P. H. Korst, secretary.

Both the water and gas companies are now beyond the reach of the common council—just as the gas company which received its permit from the state in 1909 has always been. All grievances arising between the municipality and these corporations will hereafter have to be heard before the railroad commission and that will be very cumbersome.

The water company shows no disposition to lay extensions on bluff street and in the first ward which were ordered by the council some time ago. It is conceded that the extensions are not necessary for fire protection and inasmuch as the number of prospective consumers does not warrant the outlay, the railroad commission will probably decide for the company if the matters are taken before it. The good old days when these corporations, under their franchise, had to obey the council's mandates are gone.

The Monterey "Sluggers" baseball team defeated the Janesville "All-Stars" yesterday afternoon in a twelve-inning game on the field near the old tanks in Monterey. The final score was 5 to 4. The contest was fast and close. The batteries were Paul Mantel and Arthur Showers for the "Sluggers" and Brown and Hill for the "All-Stars." Mantel struck out fifteen "All-Star" batters and Brown fanned six men. The "Sluggers" got ten hits off Brown and the "All-Stars" four singles off Mantel.

INTERURBAN CO. TO PROVE GOOD FAITH WITHIN 30 DAYS

President H. H. Zigler Says Construction Work Will Surely Commence Early Next Month.

President H. H. Zigler and Engineer Joseph Ellis of the Cincinnati Construction Co. and J. J. Hartley of Philadelphia and E. F. Maxwell of Cincinnati who have taken contracts for the construction work of the projected interurban railroad from Janesville to Madison arrived here from Chicago this morning and were conveyed by automobile from this city to the capital this afternoon over the route of the lines. Mr. Zigler, in response to inquiries, made the following statement: "We have our right of way and franchise. We will file our bonds with the state and show our good faith within 30 days. Contracts for the construction of the road have been signed and provide that it must be completed within six months. We will start work at both ends of the line and the road will be operating by December. There are one or two matters still to be adjusted. In addition to the arrangement we have made to take our cars into the capital over the Madison traction company's lines, we find that we've got to get a franchise from the city of Madison. The laws of Wisconsin are pretty discouraging to investors but we've got so much money tied up in this enterprise already that we've simply got to go ahead and finish it."

THIEVES ENTERED SCHALLER & M'KEY LUMBER CO. OFFICE

Sometime Saturday Night and Carried Away 24 Pennies, a Safety Razor, and An Old Revolver.

Schaller & M'Key's lumber office was broken into sometime Saturday night; the desk-drawers were opened with a screw-driver; and twenty-four pennies, a Star safety razor, and an old revolver were carried away. The thief, or thieves if there was more than one, well showed from observation while they utilized a ladder which happened to be on the premises and with the aid of a jack-knife cut the window frame from the lumber shed which adjoins the office. The door opening into the shed from the office was unlocked. George M'Key found the office in disorder when he chanced to visit the place about ten o'clock yesterday morning and at once notified Chief Appleby. It developed that two local characters, one of whom was once convicted of stealing being from the same firm, had been seen about the premises Saturday night and Officer Sam Brown journeyed to "the jungle" below the old Robinson brewery in Dr. Edgemoor's automobile and found the pair holding a little revel with slight bottles of beer. They were arrested and taken to the station, locked up, and later put in the "sweat box." But neither made any damaging admissions and last evening both were released.

London, June 6.—Many persons of distinction are preparing to go to Oxford tomorrow, when the honorary degree of D. C. L. is to be conferred upon "Theodore" Roosevelt. The degree will be conferred at a convocation to be held in the Sheldonian theatre immediately before the Romanes lecture. Lord Curzon will propose the degree, and after Mr. Roosevelt has been duly presented by Dr. Goady, Regius Professor of Civil Law Lord Curzon will confer the degree in Latin. This ceremony being concluded, the chancellor will, in English, express the welcome of the university to Mr. Roosevelt, who will then deliver the Romanes lecture.

SUIT OF CLOTHES STOLEN FROM HOME IN MONTEREY

Complaint Made by Mrs. James McDonald This Morning—Officer Chapman Saw Thief Yesterday.

While examining the houses near the ice house yesterday morning in an effort to locate the parties who broke into the Schaller & M'Key office, Patrolman Peter Chapman devoted particular attention to a tramp who wore a blue suit with two shoes and a light gray hat and carried an old fashioned razor in his pocket. This morning Mrs. James McDonald complained that wearing apparel and cutlery answering to the same description were stolen from her home in Monterey sometime yesterday. All the hounds of the "hose" were visited by officers this morning but all including the unusually well dressed suitor that was hanging around the sidewalks of the city last week had disappeared. It is understood that one gang had a big spree near the C. & N. W. viaduct last evening.

MRS. HENRY PALMER DIED ON SATURDAY

Passed Away At Her Home On Madison Street After Brief Illness.

On Saturday night shortly before midnight occurred the death of Mrs. Edna A. Palmer, widow of the late Dr. Henry Palmer, who died in 1895. Mrs. Palmer, whose maiden name was Edna A. Hoyt, was born at Coltham, New York, June 13th, 1834, and was married on November 4th, 1852 to Henry Palmer at Orlanah, Pa. In that state, in 1856 they came to Janesville, where she has since resided, with the exception of about two years during the war when she was with her husband at York, Pennsylvania, where he was in charge of the Union Army hospital.

To them were born eight children, three of whom died in early childhood. Those who survive the mother are: Dr. William H. Palmer, Mrs. J. S. Malcolm O. Mount, and Mrs. Sidney Taylor of this city and Mrs. J. A. Sabin, of Denver, Colorado; Mrs. Charles Tallman of this city is a granddaughter, being the child of Mrs. Charles Palmer, a deceased daughter. Mrs. Palmer is also survived by Charles Hoyt, a brother, of Denver, Colorado, and Mrs. Emma Porter, a sister, who has resided with her for several years.

Mrs. Palmer has been for many years a member of the Baptist church and lived daily her Christianity in a gentle and unobtrusive manner. Dignified and quiet in manner and speech, a lover of nature and of mankind she was a true gentleman. The beautiful character of Mrs. Palmer was reflected in the beauty of her face. Love of home, of husband and her children was her greatest characteristic. Loyalty in co-operation with them was pronounced. Their interests and purposes she made her own. Her husband's education was begun after his marriage, and was carried on while engaged in other work. It was the custom of the young wife to read to her husband from medical books while he was engaged in manual labor. No doubt but that the influence which Dr. Henry Palmer had was due in no small part to the loving co-operation of this woman. A good woman has passed from this life and the heritage of her example and memory is left to her descendants and those who know her.

The funeral services will be held at the residence, 237 Madison street, on Tuesday, June 7th, at half past two o'clock in the afternoon.

FRANK J. TRAUT HANDLED 'JACK POT'

BEARDSTOWN MAN CONFESSES
HE COLLECTED FUND TO KILL FISH BILL.

SUM OF $2,500 MADE UP

John Dixon and Henry Lemm Tell
Grand Jury About Demand for Grant by Certain Members of Illinois General Assembly.

Beardstown, Ill., June 6.—The money contributed by Illinois river fishermen to sweeten the jackpot and kill the fish bill has been traced one step nearer the master grater, Frank J. Traut, a local fish and ice dealer, has confessed that he received the $1,250 collected by John Dixon from fishermen in the Peoria district; that he received from other "collectors" an amount sufficient to make up the $2,500 "required" by the holdup legislators; and that the money was to be paid to the legislators for the death of the fish bill.

This information was obtained by State's Attorney Burke of Springfield after a flying trip here. He talked with Traut for more than an hour and seemed well pleased with the results of his visit.

Admits Handling the Fund.

Mr. Traut not only admitted having handled the fund, but also acknowledged that he spent the night before the adjournment of the legislature with A. M. Foster, chairman of the house committee on game and fish. This committee had charge of the bill.

What became of the money is the mystery which Prosecutor Burke is trying to solve.

Confirms Dixon's Story.

The gaining of the acknowledgment from Traut that he received the money collected by Dixon of Peoria confirms the latter's testimony. Dixon asserted that he took the money to Springfield inclosed in a piece of brown paper, used ordinarily for wrapping fish, and gave the $1,250 to Mr. Traut.

The latter said to State's Attorney Burke that he collected considerable more. The exact amount has not been made public. Mr. Traut gave the names, addresses and business connections of the contributors to the Sangamon county prosecutor.

Probably a number of these will be subpoenaed to appear in Springfield. In addition to Mr. Traut, Ralph O. Lord, bookkeeper for Henry Lemm, fish dealer at Pekin, and Charles Gridley, an attorney of Cass county, have been summoned to appear in Springfield. Mr. Gridley was attorney for the fish merchants and was in Springfield at the time the bid was under consideration.

Jury is Given Details.

Springfield, Ill., June 6.—John Dixon of Peoria and Henry Lemm of Pekin, two of the largest fish dealers of the state, told the Sangamon county grand jury about the demands for graft by certain members of the general assembly to kill the fish bill. These men asserted that the amount demanded and given was $2,500, but neither of them gave it to the legislators direct. Two others acted as middlemen, and Mr. Burke will attempt to search these out.

Part for Expenses.

The statement of Dixon proved to be far more important than was the testimony of Lemm. Dixon said that the total amount collected was approximately $2,100, but that all over $2,500, which was to go to certain members of the general assembly, was used for current expenses. Mr. Dixon and several other fishmen were in Springfield at frequent intervals while the legislature was in session. Their expenses had to be paid.

Dixon said that of the total collections he received $1,250, and this and amounts collected by others were put together. The total of $2,500 was placed in a secret place, according to the agreement among the fishermen, to be taken by a man whose identity has not been disclosed to a certain lawmaker. It appears that this agreement was not strictly carried out. The man who found the money in his hiding place gave it to another man, who in turn handed it to a legislator.

Mr. Burke has the names of both these men who are alleged to have handled the cash after it was put in hiding.

ADVISING NATALIE

Whenever people talked it over they invariably ended by saying it was a perfect shame that Natalie Baker was throwing herself away on Tom Arnold.

It was not that they had anything definite against Tom. The objection was more against what he wasn't than what he was. He just wasn't much of anything. He was twenty-four and had a clerkship in an office where by industry he might achieve $150 a month in ten years or so and then might stick there for the rest of his life. Not that the measure of a man is his income, but it is the measure of his position in the world, and Natalie was the kind of girl who would be wasted in obscurity.

Natalie was so extraordinarily and commandingly pretty and so generally fascinating that it was irritating to the community at large that she was not to be carried away in a golden chariot, or rather in a limousine with the requisite bank account behind it.

"Of course," said Mrs. Flecker, who had been a friend of Natalie's mother and who watched rather exasperatedly her father's indulgent method of bringing up his daughter, "it isn't that one is mercenary—or that I don't believe in falling in love or anything like that—but why under creation Natalie couldn't have picked out some one else to fasten her affections on is a mystery. If her mother had lived I'll warrant she'd have broken up the Tom Arnold affair! Men are so stupid!"

Natalie and Tom had been chums always. And Tom had always been just an ordinary boy, unnoticeably ordinary looking, and with no flashes of brilliance to compensate for his looks. His devotion to Natalie was his chief charm. But he did not get excited about it.

Moreover, he did not appear conscious that it was extraordinary that Natalie seemed completely satisfied with him. He didn't know any reason why she shouldn't like him. They had grown up together, Tom having the run of the house, her father being so used to seeing him about and having him under foot that he had not realized Tom was no longer a boy. Of course, being her father he never would realize that Natalie also had grown up.

Mrs. Flecker and other women did what they could to give Natalie a chance, as they called it. They invited her to dinner and artfully asked eligible young men at the same time. They called her "my dear" and lectured her on making the best of one's opportunities and the awfulness of matrimonial mistakes.

With his salary—or lack of it, rather—Tom could not spend much money in entertaining Natalie. Mrs. Flecker almost wept when she considered Natalie in the glory of her willow-plummed hat and $150 velvet suit going to a more vaudeville show.

"She's just wasting herself and she'll regret it some day!" prophesied Mrs. Flecker. "If she'd only take an interest in some one else! But she doesn't seem to be amused by another man on earth! I don't wonder Tom is crazy about her, but what she can see in him is beyond me!"

Therefore when one day Natalie confided to Mrs. Flecker that she and Tom were at outs that good woman's heart leaped for gladness.

"He's far too particular," Natalie said. "I wouldn't stand it the other evening. He acts as though his word was law and—"

"I'm glad you have so much spirit," said Mrs. Flecker, while she inwardly thanked her stars that Irving Lawrence was coming to dinner that night. "Telephone your house that you are going to stay with us this evening for dinner."

Irving Lawrence was exactly the sort of young man Mrs. Flecker would have picked out for Natalie. He was handsome and clever and prosperous and nobody knew where he would stop now that he had begun to climb in business. Natalie found him decidedly agreeable.

Three months later Natalie's bewildered father was issuing wedding invitations for the marriage of his daughter and Irving Lawrence. That young man had fallen a victim to Natalie at first sight and his wooing had been tempestuous. Tom Arnold simply had been swept off the boards.

"I am glad, Natalie," Mrs. Flecker told her, "that your childish infatuation for Tom died a natural death. You would have been crazy to marry him. You see it now, don't you?"

Natalie turned her big solitary around on her finger. "I suppose so," she said. "I—I haven't seen Tom for weeks."

"Well, you don't want to see him," said Mrs. Flecker sharply. "I'm so glad you're going to Europe on your wedding trip!"

It was just four days before her wedding day that Natalie and Tom Arnold eloped and were married. She had met him on the street and discovered in five minutes' talk that she hadn't really fallen in love with Irving Lawrence at all. Of course, she was very sorry to treat Irving so and apologized prettily in the letter she wrote him.

Mrs. Flecker hasn't got over it yet. Every time she goes to see Natalie in her four-room flat, where she is doing her own work and seems supremely happy, she comes away madder than before.

"There simply isn't any use trying to do things for some girls!" Mrs. Flecker says.

Harvard Strong Man Tells How to Live on $1.00 a Week.

Breakfast—Oatmeal, corn bread, fruit or nuts.

Luncheon—Bread or hominy, bread and butter, apples or fruit in season.

Dinner—Two boiled eggs, potatoes, bread and butter.

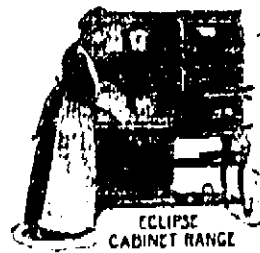

Cambridge, Mass.—The solution of the high cost of living seems to have been worked out by a Harvard undergraduate, who is by the way, recognized as the college strong man, a member of the football team, and who last year won his "H." It is estimated that the average cost per week for the board of an undergraduate is $6. Earl V. M. Long, known popularly as "Bo" Long, lives on his entire satisfaction on an average of $1 per week. His features are clean cut and his forehead broad. He has been a rancher in Arizona, has traveled in nearly every country of the globe and this June will graduate with an A. B. attached to his name.

Long has worked his way through college. When he arrived in Cambridge four years ago he had besides his matriculation fee, $1, a suit and a half of clothes and a pair of industrious hands. He has certainly made good. While the economical conditions were more or less forced upon him he has found out the advantages of light eating, and even when at the training table provided for the football team, where every variety of good things to eat is furnished without additional cost, he still keeps to his menu consisting chiefly of eggs, rice, bread and butter, nuts and fruit.

ROUGH RIDERS GATHERING TO HONOR COL. ROOSEVELT.
Col. Roosevelt and squadron of famous Rough Riders as they will appear in New York parade.

New York—The welcome arranged for Col. Roosevelt upon his arrival here the morning of June 18 is the most extensive planned for any American. This is in spite of Roosevelt's expressed desire to have it as simple as possible. One of the most striking features will be the part played in the great parade by his old comrades, the Rough Riders. They will form a bodyguard around the ex-president and will take precedence over diplomats, senators and other national and international personages. That the reputation of the ex-president is indissolubly associated with the "Rough Riders" of the world is known and it is therefore entirely proper that a country will be present to meet and greet their ex-leader.

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

MEAT VS. NUTS.

Any nut, except the chestnut, furnishes a better supply of albumen than does flesh meat. The pecan is the ideal nut, the elements being in it so well balanced that it might be used as an exclusive monodiet; the walnut also contains an ample supply of albumen with fat and all the mineral elements of food. The peanut contains about thirty per cent. of albumen, of a character so readily assimilated that caution is necessary against eating them too freely, two or three flatfuls of unshelled Virginia nuts being sufficient for the daily ration of albumen for the average adult, although a healthy youth will need more, an aged person less. The Italian walnut is preferable to the English or American grown. The best combination for nuts is entire wheat bread, which should not be fresh. This gives bulk to balance the richness of the nut. But so far as nutritive balance is concerned, fruits are preferable for combination with nuts because they contain little albumen and fat and much carbohydrate, or heat, and energy food.

Marie Antoinette's Guillotine.

The question is being mooted as to which was the first guillotine. On this point a sixteenth century machine with a steel blade, invented by one Jacques Callot, has been found to decapitate sheep in the most admirable manner. Which machine, of the type invented by Guillotine was first put to the dread use is not known, but that used for the execution of Marie Antoinette still exists in Berlin.

Slow Moving Remorse.

Remorse often overtakes offenders long after the evil has been done. A middle aged man once sent the lighting department of Denver $2 in payment for a street lamp he had broken when a boy; and a pocketbook containing a small sum was mailed to a newspaper in an advertisement, by some one who picked it up in the street four years before.—Sunday Magazine.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"WELL, YOU kindly tell a girl who has never entertained very much until recently, and who does not wish to display her ignorance by asking her friends, something about the etiquette of dining in a cafe?" is the latest inquiry that I have found in my letter box.

Of course, I will gladly tell her anything that I know about, and as the two specific questions that she propounds are very simple, I guess they come under that heading.

The first is, "In a party of two or more at a cafe or other public place, does each one give the waiter his order?" or does the one who has invited the party order for all?

Usually the person who has invited the party gives the order for all, after having consulted his guests as to their preferences.

The second question is, "In ordering where dinner is served in courses, do you order one course at a time, or all at once?"

There is no hard and fast rule about that. Most persons order oysters and soup and perhaps the fish course, and then decide on the later courses while these are being brought.

I don't often talk on the subject of etiquette, so while I'm on this topic I'm going to make bold to offer one or two little etiquette reminders that may not come amiss.

"When is it etiquette for a man to take a woman's arm?" I heard asked the other day.

Never.

A man should never take a woman's arm. He should offer her his. And it is not etiquette for him to do this in the daytime unless the woman be old or infirm. At night he may offer his arm, although even then it is quite as good taste not to. And as for the habit of perpetually guiding women about by the elbow, which so many men have, I think it is abominable, and any woman is justified in resenting it.

A good many men, I have noticed, step back and allow the woman to leave the car before them. That is very bad form. A man should always get out of the car first and then offer his hand to help his companion out.

That a man should not smoke when walking with a woman on the street is a rule that I suppose most men know, even if, knowing the right, they still occasionally pursue the wrong. But there is one rule of smoking etiquette that it seems to me cannot be fully understood. It is so generally disregarded, and that is the rule that it is extremely impolite for a man to talk to a woman with a cigar, pipe or cigarette in his mouth.

I stood in front of the finest hotel in this city the other day, and saw a man dressed in the extreme of fashion—tail suit and clothes of the very latest cut—hand a fine lady into a very magnificently appointed automobile, with a very gracious and lordly manner, and then climb in and sit beside her, chatting with her, while a cigar tilted from the corner of his mouth.

I fancy that man would have looked at the bare idea of his needing any hints on etiquette. And yet—

If all these little reminders are entirely unnecessary, please just forget them.

If not, you are welcome.

OKLAHOMA WOMEN WALKING TO SAN FRANCISCO ON $25,000 WAGER.

Nowata, Ok.—The two Muskogee women, Mrs. Frank J. Seery and Mrs. Charles Smith Jenkins, who are walking to the big where a stop is made, Muskogee May 4, arrived in Nowata tonight, having covered 100 miles.

The women have lost $25,000 that they can walk from Muskogee, Ok., to San Francisco, and make their expenses on the way by selling postal picture cards of themselves, and a patent shoe boot spring, such as they wear in the shoes they use on their trip. Their husbands remain in Muskogee.

Mrs. Jenkins is a graduate of Bethany college, West Virginia, and Mrs. Seery is a graduate of the University of South Dakota. Mrs. Seery has had experience as a writer, and Mrs. Jenkins is a sketch artist. They have set for themselves a time limit of four months.

"We travel just as lightly as possible," said Mrs. Seery. "Our costumes were made for us with a view to weight, durability and comfort. We carry nothing but a pair of light-weight blankets. When we reach the sparsely settled sections of the plains, or in the mountains, where towns are far apart and farmhouses scarce we may add kumpracks to our outfit and carry condensed foods."

Each carries a skinkooter in plain sight. When they fail to reach a town or find a farmhouse at nightfall, they will sleep in the open.

Nature.

Nature never wears a mean appearance. Neither does the wisest man extort her secret and lose his curiosity by finding out all her perfection. Nature never becomes a toy to a wise spirit. The flowers, the animals, the mountains, reflected the wisdom of his best hour, as much as they had deluged the simplicity of his childhood. —Emerson.

A Homely Remedy.

A somewhat old-time but successful remedy for swollen feet is to bathe them in water in which wood ashes have been boiled. The water must be cooled and strained before the feet are placed in it.

Advice.

"What's the best way to save money?" asked the thrifty youth. "Quit reading the racing news and the market quotations."

WOMAN'S MISSION—ONE OF THEM.

By MARY RUSSELL.

The struggles of many women you meet to conceal the weakness of the man whom they have married is most pathetic.

The marriage of very young people so often is a mistake that time surely reveals.

It is small wonder that mothers and fathers teach and entreat for more mature years to come before making a choice that is for life.

In this day of divorce that sounds like a joke. The sunny man on my cheap little paper will make you a joke on the subject of progressive marriages while you wait.

Next to the mother-in-law it is most profitable of returns for the joke-smith. He catches his ideas from the frivolous, thoughtless people of the world.

A marriage is a choice for life after all—and a divorce does not make that statement any the less true. Lives are changed and ruined and marred by hasty marriages, even though the courts cut the ties so hastily fastened.

The sens and bitterness of a marriage which is not a mating no man nor woman can count. Even the thoughtless child who turns from the judge with a smile, and gives her hand to another while the sad words that end one chapter of her story are hardly forgotten, has made no indelible change in her character. For better or worse! Aye, and the judge's decree makes no change in that law.

Men are seldom so patient with the women they marry, who fall below their natural ideals. They are impatient with a woman who will not keep up with the times even though they themselves furnish small opportunity for the improvement they desire.

That other women keep young and pretty and stylish—that they keep up with the literary trend and are able to make brilliant speeches in general conversation—all these things seem so easy from a man's point of view, and they hold out no helping hand to the poor little woman struggling with babies and bills. She is no magician or mind reader. The things that once satisfied her lord and master should still satisfy him—since he makes no change in the conditions governing the situation.

But a woman will pretend and cover up weaknesses. She will quote a husband, who never said a bright thing in his life, with adaptations of her own will. She will guide him, without his ever finding it out, and take no credit for the act, indeed she will indignantly deny that she has had anything to do with his success, as would he!

Marcus Aurelius says "a man should be upright—not kept upright."

But if it were not for the good women of the world—the mothers and sisters and wives—what would become of weak men? They sturd and stiffen his good intentions and he accepts them, all shining and fair, as his own.

And some of us sit and wonder if that is woman's mission after all. Is she just a feeder, as it were, to man? Is it true that souls are without sex and that only our interpretation of the duties of man and woman are responsible for their apparently different views of life? It sometimes looks like it. "Think it over, have you a man's soul or a woman's?"

A Word from Josh Wiso.

"Men sneer at women's shopping, but when women shop they don't have to put out clothes for display that they've been buying."

SWEETHEART, WHOSE LIFE'S HOPE WAS BLASTED THROUGH FATAL MISTAKE BY DETECTIVES, DEMANDS JUSTICE. Pauline McHugh, fiancée of miner shot through mistake of Chicago Detectives.

Chicago, Ill.—"I have nothing more to live for unless there is some atonement" cried the agonized Pauline McHugh. The life of this beautiful girl, but 21 years old, has been blasted almost in its bud by the fatal mistake of three "hair trigger" detectives who mistook her sweetheart John Dubinski, for another man. Dubinski, a miner was returning home quietly when from the shadows suddenly appeared three men in plain clothes. They ordered him to stop. Thinking they were highway men he did the human thing and turning, ran. Instantly three shots rang out in the night and John fell forward, dead.

Thus through attempting to do their duty as it appeared to them the price of the law ruled the life of one girl and brought sorrow to the bereaved father and brother and sister of the law-abiding miner.

Grief-stricken Pauline has sought and won the sympathy of hundreds of women who are residing here in her fight for the atonement of her wrong.

Chief Steward denies the rumor that he instructed the police to "shoot to kill" and says that rule 6, section 41, of the police department instructions, which orders policemen to shoot only in self-defense or when a criminal makes an effort to draw a gun, still is effective. He is investigating the case thoroughly.

Natural and Supernatural.
The strict meaning of the word "supernatural" is "above" or "beyond" the natural; and where the natural ends and the supernatural begins is a matter that is still in the courts. The wisest minds of the race have been debating the question for ten thousand years or more, and the subject is still far from being settled. The best definition of nature known to us is to be found in John Stuart Mill's "Three Essays on Religion," and is as follows: "Nature is a collective name for all facts, actual and possible; or a name for the Mode, partly known to us and partly unknown, in which all things take place." It will be observed from this definition that in Mill's opinion nature is all, the so-called supernatural being but the "unknown" side of the natural.

NAME DELEGATES FOR CONFERENCE

REPUBLICANS OF COUNTY NOW
STRONGLY ORGANIZED.

TAFT STRONGLY ENDORSED

A. E. Matheson, Gives Strong Talk on the Policies of the President
—McNamara County Chairman.

That Rock county is a Taft stronghold and that Governor Davidson's administration be endorsed was evidenced Saturday at the gathering of Republicans at the Court House. There were some two hundred members of the G. O. P. present and over a hundred and fifty delegates representing every voting precinct in the county. It was a republican gathering regardless of any past factional differences that have existed in the ranks. B. G. Smith of Beloit, the presiding officer and U. G. White of Afton acted as officers of the gathering which resolved itself into a republican county organization, with a county committee and county chairman in the person of H. L. McNamara.

The committee on resolutions was composed of W. T. Pomeroy of Elgin, John M. Whitehead of Janesville, Charles A. Gault of Beloit. Their resolution endorsing Taft and the federal administration, which was published Saturday, was received with enthusiasm and the election of a permanent county organization was endorsed and members elected at the different district caucuses held during the meeting. A full list of delegates to the Milwaukee conference on Wednesday, June 8, was named.

While the committee on resolutions was busy preparing their report, Chairman Smith called on A. E. Matheson who gave the following talk on Taft and the administration. "When I was a boy, a number of years before I attained my majority, I gave my youthful political allegiance to the democratic party. This was due solely to the fact that my father was at that time a democrat in politics and was not wholly pleased with my political connections. The principles of the democratic party did not satisfy me. My status was due to my loyalty to my father, and to my determination to stand with him. Not that I objected to democrats as men, for good and true men are found in all great parties. It was a question of principles and not individuals. Before I attained my majority and became a voter my father, for very good and sufficient reasons, disassociated with the conduct of the democratic party after attaining power. Left the ranks of that party, and thereafter gave his allegiance to the republican party. I was most happy to follow him, thereby uniting my affection for him with my political judgment.

Since that time I have been a republican. To that party I have given my allegiance, but not a blind and unthinking loyalty. I have ever claimed, and still claim, the right to think and act for myself in great emergencies, unrestrained by any party or individual. In local government, where there are no party issues, and where it ought to be simply a question of honest and capable men for public office, there is generally no valid reason why party allegiance should dominate one's choice at the polls. There may be times when the American citizenship and the independence that goes with such a citizenship, protesting against an unworthy candidate or a declaration of policy or principle of which he cannot approve asserts his political freedom and breaks from his party. Generally, however, a voter should be able to find some party to which, and to the leaders of which, he can give his allegiance.

Great movements must come through organization. There can be no social or economic advance without the union of men devoted to a common principle or pledge, and loyal also to the chosen leaders of the organization. Likewise there cannot be political progress without political parties and without loyalty to the chosen political leaders, and we must sometimes submit to this leadership and cooperate with the leaders when the men thus chosen are personally not satisfactory to us. A political chiefdom may not be all that I desire, either in character or ability, but, for the sake of the larger good, I must work with him in bringing about certain much desired party or legislative action.

Therefore, while a protest against party or leader may be quite excusable, and even highly desirable at times, such "insurgency" (to use a modern political phrase) should be temporary. When public men become chronic "insurgents," standing constantly in opposition to the chosen party leaders and refusing party cooperation, they are doing that which must result in party disorder and possible governmental chaos. Such men should seek new party affiliations. They should form no new party where they can other themselves be the leaders or the unwavering followers of such as may be selected to direct that party and shape its policies.

We have gathered today, as I understand it, for one purpose and only one; and that is to declare our support of President Taft, his administration, and his policies. There are those who accuse us of a desire and purpose to revive factional struggles in the republican party in Wisconsin. With such I take issue. Whatever have been the controversies within our party in this state, let them go and be buried in the past. I, for one, shall not attempt to revive past struggles for two reasons; one that some of our past leaders are so dead that they are beyond resurrection; the other, that such a resurrection, even if possible, would be fruitless and bring only misery and disaster. The national administration is worthy of our unstinted loyalty, and we are here to express it in no uncertain terms.

We do not forget the wonderful personality of Roosevelt, nor the greatness of his achievements as president. Because we admire a new leader and president more it does not follow that we revere a past leader and president less. I am sure there are those who thought, and still think, so much of Roosevelt, that they are possessed with a fear that loyalty to any other man means something of disloyalty to Roosevelt. Surely we are large enough and broad minded enough to admire two great and good men, unlike in personality and method and to give our best support to both. And then, we need not be anxious about Roosevelt. He will take care of himself. He has just returned from conquering the world, and has Alexander, his man after more worlds to conquer. He sits with kings and emperors, meets them as comrades, and tells them whether they like it or not, and every day adds to his already immense and useful influence.

In President Taft we have a hard working, patriotic, clear headed, honest, great hearted, pure, Godly man. Withal he is a man of splendid poise, great ability, and ripe and rich experience. He has no selfish plans; he labors without malice and with a patience that is sublime. Let us not forget that he had the courage to call congress, in special session for tariff legislation, when he knew that in the past such laws had resulted in loss to the administration and loss to the country, and that he had the courage to stand against the powerful private interests, political influence, profound ignorance of certain facts relating to the tariff, and the play of congressmen for political advantage, his good president, has brought forth a tariff law which is an improvement upon tariff laws of the past, which has brought about reductions where much needed, and which, on the whole, is the very best that any party chieftain could have secured with conditions as they were when the tariff bill was passed or as they are now before the law has been fairly tried. In addition, the president has secured a tariff commission which will collect data for use as the basis of a scientific tariff. He could have performed a temporary popularity by refusing to sign the bill. This he declined to do, but sacrificed himself for the larger good. He sacrificed himself in order to give the country business stability. He has secured legislation for more effective corporation supervision, at the same time adding to the revenues of the government. He has recommended, and is about to secure, legislation giving increased power and authority to the interstate commerce commission and establishing a special commerce court. He has pledged himself to the conservation of our national resources, and has asked for legislation to make executive action more effective to that end. He has declared in favor of an anti-trust law and other legislation promised in the last republican national platform. Postal savings bank legislation, also pledged in the party platform, is now pending in congress. He has introduced economies and business methods into government departments and bureaus which may ultimately mean a saving of $100,000,000 per year in expenses. Withal, the president has indicated that his administration be one to act within and according to the laws of the land, knowing that violating or overstepping the law breeds a spirit of lawlessness and, in the long run, results in favoring the strong and opposing the weak.

President Taft has made a clear and convincing statement as to these things in the June number of McClure's magazine. If, then, I understand the meaning of this gathering, it is to express our allegiance, awe, and our affection, for President Taft as a man of the very best type and finest character; our loyalty to his administration as the instrumentality through which he works, and to his policies and those which are the best for the American people.

SERVICES HELD BY THE WOODMEN

FLORENCE CAMP, NO. 366, M. W. A. PAID TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED MEMBERS.

REV. L. A. M'INTYRE SPOKE

And Following the Exercises in the Hall, the Graves of Woodmen in Cemetery Were Decorated.

Members of Florence Camp No. 366, Modern Woodmen of America, held services in memory of their dead at West Side Odd Fellows hall yesterday afternoon. Members of the auxiliary lodge, the Royal Neighbors, and friends joining with them in keeping the occasion. After the exercises in the hall, a number of them went to the cemetery, where graves of the twenty-eight members who have gone to the camp beyond, were decorated. Venerable Canon W. B. Davis presided at the services and Rev. L. A. McIntyre delivered the memorial address. A short program was given.

The program was opened with a selection by a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Taylor and L. A. Fleming. Rev. McIntyre spoke a prayer and the quartet sang again after which the sermon was given. "I am glad," said Rev. McIntyre, "to speak on an occasion like this, when you as an order and your auxiliary, take occasion to pay tribute to the memory of your departed members. The thought came to me, in thinking of this service, what it meant and the organization back of it. The organization is founded on the fact of my talk, from the words of that great man, Paul in his letter to the church at Galatia. This man was a devoted and earnest adherent of his faith and his field the entire world as it was then known. He had heard that the church at Galatia had become negligent and the spirit of fault-finding had crept in, so he wrote to them a letter. Among the things he said was 'Bear ye one another's burdens.' One of the great duties of life is the obligation of burden-bearing; of helpfulness to those about us.

"I am glad," said Rev. McIntyre, "to know that this from the first, was not so intended. From the very beginning the Great Creator has been trying to teach us the great lesson of helpfulness. "But man has more or less failed in following these teachings. In the coming of the 'Man of Galilee' there came one who fully measured up to the expectations of God. He came announcing these great truths, as the coming of a teacher and the nations of the world and today we look with wonder on Him.

"Under the old Jewish law, it was 'Justice to your fellowman'—an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. If a man committed murder he lost his life. When the Galilean came He did not teach the old law of Moses, but the Golden Rule. 'As ye would have others do unto you, do ye unto them.' Ever since Christ laid down the Golden Rule, man has ever been trying to carry out those principles enunciated by the Galilean. From the human side, from that day there has sprung up organizations that have had that same motto, in different words, of helping one another. All honor to any organization that has this spirit.

"I thought when the nation was remembering the heroes of the Civil War and men who were gathered to their rest in the graves of the heroes true were decorated. Not all of the heroes of life fought on the battlefield. There lies in the cemetery many a man and woman who fought battles greater than were ever fought on the field of carnage; men and women who ought to be crowned today for the fight they put up. The greatest battlefield of today is the battlefield of toll. In the great battlefield of today, bear ye one another's burdens.

"And the burdens to be borne are many. There is the burden of toll and poverty, indeed, is a burden. It prevents the gaining of knowledge; quenches the nobler striving; and makes life 'drudgery.' If men will equalize, in a certain degree, a great deal of the problem would be solved. "Then again there is the burden of family. It is easy to see the faults of one's brothers and neighbors and easy to tell them how to correct their faults. A great writer has said not to be too busy in keeping the other fellow down because of his faults. If a brother falls, give him a lift and help to rise again. It is often a greater help to give a kind word to the man who is down than to hand him as heek, large enough to meet all his obligations. A man that is full of encouragement can solve his own problems, but a man who is dependent and down-hearted has given up trying. Sympathy is needed.

"There is the burden of Affliction and Difficulty. Affliction and sorrow and death comes into the homes. You have met here this afternoon to express your sympathy to those who have been bereaved. All honor to the man who organizes a club when the hand of death comes into the home, tries to lighten the burden there, and let in the sunshine. That man or that organization is doing one of the greatest things in life." "The entire company sang the closing hymn, 'God Be With You Till We Meet Again.'"

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR
BIG DRY GOODS CONCERN

Kansas City Company Is Solvent—Assets Nearly Double Liabilities—Bad Weather Cause.

Kansas City, Mo., June 6.—The federal court has appointed receivers for the Jones Dry Goods company of this city, one of the largest of its kind in this part of the country.

The liabilities are placed at $1,400,000 and the assets at over $2,000,000. Henry L. Root and Charles Campbell of this city, who were named as receivers by Judge John F. Phillips in the United States district court, gave bond in the sum of $400,000. The receivers stated the company was solvent and that its business would be continued without interruption.

The action by the court was taken following the filing of a bill in equity by Hollingshead & Campbell of New York city, note brokers, who hold two of the company's notes for $5,000 each. The petition asserts that the action is taken to prevent small creditors from securing judgments and thus jeopardizing the interests of all concerned.

It is alleged that the company has been spending large sums for realty and for leases that should be placed in the business. The immediate cause of the receivership is given as poor business resulting from unfavorable spring weather, making it impossible to meet the obligations, which were maturing at the rate of $75,000 a week.

The principal creditors are in St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR
BIG DRY GOODS CONCERN

Kansas City Company Is Solvent—Assets Nearly Double Liabilities—Bad Weather Cause.

Kansas City, Mo., June 6.—The federal court has appointed receivers for the Jones Dry Goods company of this city, one of the largest of its kind in this part of the country.

The liabilities are placed at $1,400,000 and the assets at over $2,000,000. Henry L. Root and Charles Campbell of this city, who were named as receivers by Judge John F. Phillips in the United States district court, gave bond in the sum of $400,000. The receivers stated the company was solvent and that its business would be continued without interruption.

The action by the court was taken following the filing of a bill in equity by Hollingshead & Campbell of New York city, note brokers, who hold two of the company's notes for $5,000 each. The petition asserts that the action is taken to prevent small creditors from securing judgments and thus jeopardizing the interests of all concerned.

It is alleged that the company has been spending large sums for realty and for leases that should be placed in the business. The immediate cause of the receivership is given as poor business resulting from unfavorable spring weather, making it impossible to meet the obligations, which were maturing at the rate of $75,000 a week.

The principal creditors are in St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York.
